

Seeding

In the video clip on the tuition page, the small sample was worked with perle #5 thread on a circle measuring 30 mm in diameter. If you wish to experiment with the stitch before you work it onto your project, draw a similar circle on your cloth with a heat erasable pen using the template below.

Working the stitch:

- Fill the space with small, straight stitches that face in different directions and do not touch each other.
- More difficult than it looks at first glance, you should make sure that all the stitches that are close to one another should not lie at the same angle.
- All the stitches should be done at random. Try to make them of similar lengths.

Depending on what the project requires, I find that using a single strand of cotton and making the stitches slightly longer, rather than shorter, gives the best effect.
